China Recycling Non-ferrous Metals Industry Innovation & Development Summit

2024 China Recycling Non-ferrous Metals Industry Innovation and Development Summit co-hosted by the CIAR and Mysteel is scheduled to take place in Hefei, Anhui province, China on April 8-9. The summit aims to discuss new applications and technological innovations in recycled metal materials, exploring a path for green and sustainable development in the recycling industry.

Highlights:

- Discussion on the evolution of China's domestic secondary copper and aluminum industry pattern under regional differentiated policies
- Analysis and interpretation of the latest industrial policies
- Analysis of global changes in supply and demand for secondary copper, aluminum, and lead, along with future prospects
- Technological innovation in the environmental metal industry
- Recent changes in import standards for recycled copper and aluminum and their impact
- Discuss on how to give standards to recycled lead, address raw material supply shortages, and explore the possibility of importing scrap.
- Fluctuations in scrap battery prices may be included in the Price Monitoring Center of the NDRC
- Analysis of the development of end-users and the prospects for the development of the secondary non-ferrous metal industry
- Process of recycled non-ferrous metals industry reshuffling due to the increase in processing enterprises and intensified competition
- Usage of financial tools for secondary copper, aluminum, and lead enterprises to hedge against market price fluctuations.
