Contents Restoration that Stands Out from the Rest

Ever since he watched his own parents go through the devastation and loss of a house fire, Eric Ten Eyck, founder and CEO of Archive Contents Restoration, knew he wanted to find better ways to help people who have just experienced a disaster. He recognized there was a need for a contents restoration company that could do it all under one roof.

This is where we come into play. Archive Contents Restoration is the only national brand capable of restoring soft goods, as well as furniture, appliances, photographs, documents and everything in between. Eric has found a niche market within the restoration industry and, in the process, created a business model and franchise opportunity like no other.

Site Selection, Build-Out Assistance and Equipment

You know what they say . . . location, location, location. And as cliché as that sounds, it's true. Finding the right location, at the right price will be one of the most important decisions you make in your business. At Archive, we've perfected the site search and build out process, and we will train and guide you through every step of the process. Then, once you've decided on your site, we will hold your hand through the negotiation process, and actual build out of your shop.

Marketing

When buying a franchise, one of the most valuable assets you're buying is the proven marketing system. At Archive, we'll share with you all of our best marketing practices. We will teach exactly how we built our loyal customer following. And, we'll give you access to all of our professionally designed materials so you can do the exact same thing in your area. Archive has mastered the art of local marketing including generating press, guerilla marketing tactics and social media marketing.

Hiring and HR

As the owner of a Archive, you'll only be as good as your employees. We will train you how to advertise for the appropriate positions, what credentials to require, how to interview, how to hire and how to retain top quality employees. If done right, your team will be happy and satisfied, which means so will your customers.

Comprehensive Software Suite– At Archive, we've spent years perfecting our software package. Our franchisees are able to use our software to execute just about every aspect of their Archive business. Our suite of software allows our franchisees to estimate jobs and communicate with insurance companies and third-party administrators. It also acts as a CRM, allowing franchisees to track the progress of jobs and the status of clients. It incorporates photos of every single item we restore, and it all integrates with Quickbooks online, for seamless financials reporting.
